Incident Management Retainer

Transform incident response for readiness and resilience

Preparing for Incident Response Success

Organizations are embracing transformative technologies, leading to an expanding attack surface, and increasing the risk of attack from ever-evolving adversaries. To help drive effective response and reduce the impact of a cyber incident in this new business reality, organizations need to change how they approach incident response, prioritizing cross-functional planning and preparedness activities that will strengthen detection and response capabilities, and ultimately improve incident readiness and overall cyber resilience.

Overview

The Secureworks® Incident Management Retainer (IMR) is an agreement that entitles you to a range of proactive cybersecurity consulting services and priority incident response support. Secureworks will partner with your organization to serve as an extension to your incident response team, ready to assist with preparing for and responding to a variety of cyber events impacting your organization.

Secureworks has supported thousands of global cyber incident response engagements since 2007, enabling insights on key cybersecurity practices, how adversaries exploit weakness in cyber defense, and how best to mitigate cybersecurity control failures before, during or after cyber incidents.

Our Approach

The Secureworks IMR provides organizations with the support and expertise they need to prepare and respond to a variety of incident types. To help unlock greater value from your IR retainer, the IMR tiering model gives access to prepaid Service Units. Service Units provide a flexible way to access a wide range of proactive consulting services*. In case of a cybersecurity emergency, the IMR features well defined standard and enhanced response time SLAs as well as access to the collective expertise of seasoned responders, consultants and researchers.

*Service Units can be re-purposed for Emergency Incident Response services.

Customer Benefits

- Reduce impact of a cyber incident and ensure quick, effective response and threat remediation
- Align your response support model to current maturity and objectives
- Build assurance with an accredited team of experienced incident responders and researchers
- Gain confidence and speed in your response with increased visibility and advanced detection capabilities
- Access expert help to plan, validate and guide improvements
